

16:14 Vern You should have got a small Navy Seal to see if he would fit inside
16:15 Thanet I'm architecture. So I love to see and study any engineering device
16:15 Vern Musk knew it would not be used
16:15 Thanet I'm sure it won't work 5555 you can see it first hand
16:15 Vern PR stunt
16:16 Thanet I got 2 engineer with me on my team. And they was like um... why is it look like this
16:16 Thanet True
16:17 Thanet And musk made a spotlight into it. Even know that it would not work
16:27 Thanet [Photo]
16:27 Thanet Ah i see it now. My team send me this photo
16:27 Thanet While it in the exhibit
16:29 Thanet He said it didn't show any dimension

2018/09/20(Thu)

2:15 Thanet I got no luck on the dimension.
2:15 Thanet The seal went quite.
2:16 Thanet [Sticker]
2:16 Vern No problems thanks for trying
2:22 Thanet Your welcome, I will reach out to other team member see if they went to see the exhibit some one might get the dimension back with them
2:28 Vern [Sticker]
2:29 Vern It would be useful to have this information but it doesn't get away from the fact that the TUBE was a death trap.
2:33 Thanet 5555
2:33 Thanet It probably put the divers life in danger too I think
2:33 Vern The tanks which are saying we're the life support systems were strapped to the outside. In nil Viz conditions and the difficulty of the cave passage these would be easily knocked about and possibly fall off. Also with the occupant inside there was no way a diver could check if he was still alive. Also being confined in such a small space for over 3 hours would be extremely uncomfortable and the occupant could easily panick unless again he was sedated
2:34 Thanet [Sticker]
2:34 Vern There are many other points which my ex cave diver and technical engineer has raised
2:34 Thanet I agreed
3:07 Thanet Hi Vern
3:07 Thanet Is the thum Luang is the 4th longest cave in thailand right
3:09 Vern Yes was number 6 and with the extensions made over the last 4yrs upto number 4. Next year number 1

3:32 Thanet [Sticker]
3:33 Thanet 55555
3:33 Vern Also PRETTY DANGEROUS
3:33 Vern You have to look up the definitions of Submarine and Mini Submarine

3:33 Thanet I bet Rick don't wanted to carry it in there 555
3:34 Vern 170kg (exclamation)
3:34 Thanet Yes, I was gonna go with the tube, but the media here said it a mini sub. So it sound more PR 555
3:35 Thanet Rescue tube or rescue pod might be actual word for it
3:35 Vern It's not a mini sub tell the media they are wrong
3:35 Vern Yes
3:35 Thanet Yes, I will tomorrow
3:36 Vern The word rescue very debatable
3:36 Thanet So people here are pay more attention if the media said it mini sub 555 I bet it Elon musk marketing technic
3:37 Vern Yes and it is very misleading
3:37 Thanet I will tell them the truth tomorrow
3:38 Thanet Elon musk is a big shot here in US
3:43 Vern I know but his Companies run on debt and Tesla has serious problems. I wouldn't like to be the guy this Japanese Millionaire who has been chosen to go round the moon and back. If it's anything like the TUBE he won't be coming back so he should spend his money before he is shot into space 555
3:50 Thanet 5555
3:50 Thanet Agreed
3:50 Thanet <https://youtu.be/J-fjwPyy9-A>

5:27 Thanet [Sticker]
5:27 Vern Really anyone make a comment
5:27 Thanet I got to believe us we are the one on the scene
5:28 Thanet Well I show them small section passage of the cave graphic
5:28 Thanet That only 2 feet wide
5:28 Thanet And they was like, well the sub is not going to fit
5:29 Thanet And these are are UN agency, university professor
5:29 Vern The section of passage up into Chamber 3 would have been a real tester
5:29 Thanet Yes
5:30 Thanet If people know the whole story how the cave passage is
5:30 Thanet They will all said it not gonna work
5:30 Vern And not even you knows what obstacles are ahead from the dive start point at Chamber 3
5:30 Thanet Indeed.

9:13 Thanet So I think they had not get permission from UK team ?

9:18 Vern Any movie needs to involve everyone and I mean everyone
9:18 Thanet True
9:19 Vern Any movie released in Thailand is being closely monitored by the Thai government. Any film company like Universal won't be allowed access to the people that matter
9:20 Thanet Um
9:20 Thanet That not good
9:20 Vern To be perfectly honest I am tired of the whole circus
9:21 Thanet [Sticker]
9:21 Thanet You should take time off and vacation get away from all this for a moment
9:22 Vern I had 2 months back in the UK it was great but missed Thailand. Here nothing has calmed down (crazy). It's in your face everyday

7:24 Vern They were 4 guy's. We made it to Chamber 3 on evening of 27th with Rob Rick and John. The flood waters started coming through and we nearly got trapped. With the noise we didn't see them. I think they were possibly round the back of chamber 3 maybe sleeping

7:35 Vern It was what I call organised chaos 555
7:38 Vern It's highly likely that John and Rick would have not gone any further on that day getting to Chamber 3 was according to John extremely difficult and water conditions some of the worst he had experienced. If John says that it must have been very difficult indeed

2:42 Thanet Um
2:43 Thanet Interesting
2:43 Vern About 2hrs before the meeting me and Tik approached him and I said very forcibly YOU HAVE ONE CHANCE. He told me to go away. 2hrs later I was asked to go into the now famous meeting to discuss with Minister Paochanda and Minister Weerasak

1:31 Vern Chamber 3 not accessible. Part of the journey involved floating on my back with my nose against the roof of the passage for about 10 metres. Access to Chamber 3 would have meant a dive which I wasn't keen on as on my own.
1:31 Vern I was livid that the first chamber had not been cleared up. It's easy to get to with no risk from flood waters to anyone. I sent the photos and video over to Minister Weerasak with suitable comments !!! Over on the 1st lunctime?

2:43 Vern Did you speak with Matt Guttman
2:43 Thanet Yeah, it was longtime ago I help him with his book
2:43 Thanet Like 2 month ago
2:46 Vern Ok the book is due out. I'm in constant contact with him. He is in touch with John Chu and John Panotti of Ivanhoe Productions. They did the movie Rich little asians
2:47 Vern Once they read the book they will for sure be in touch

3:23 Thanet I wish she one day she would able to meet you and other
3:26 Vern Yes I hope so will be good
4:58 Vern What did you think of Mr Anukoon (Guer) he never really got involved inside Tham Luang. Very strange considering he is supposed to be an experienced cave expert
5:06 Thanet 5555
5:06 Thanet I only met him once, in the meeting with musk's engineer
5:07 Vern On 7th. I met him only once. Think he going to help inside but he just disappear
5:08 Thanet We did change personal contact and I help him with analysis drilling location for groundwater in while rescue undertaking
5:08 Thanet He seem like a helpful guy.
5:09 Thanet But he mention that the central command ignore him and refuse his help while the rescue taking place
5:09 Thanet Not until later in the mission (after meet with musk engineer)
5:09 Vern He in Tham Luang over 10yrs ago. Problem is no one knows about water inside. Where it comes from especially in Monks Series
5:10 Thanet Yes, he did mention about being in the cave many years back
5:10 Thanet Other then that I don't really know the guy,
5:10 Vern I will push on in Monks Series and find the outside entrance
5:10 Thanet [Sticker]
5:11 Vern Far End needs more exploration also but in March/April
5:11 Thanet I think the water source might come in on the area about 200-300 meter west side of pamee
5:12 Vern Monks Series very difficult at the end of the Western Series hard caving conditions
5:12 Thanet There is a Major fracture in the rock layers we detected according to our survey
5:12 Vern Why I called the far end of Monks Series the Western Series
5:13 Thanet [Sticker]
5:13 Vern There is a significant change in the cave once it turns West
5:14 Thanet Interesting
5:15 Vern It's basically running parallel or under the main valley where the large limestone cliffs are
5:15 Thanet Ah I see
5:15 Thanet Yeah, that's what it shown on rock fracture according to our map too
5:15 Vern [Sticker]
5:16 Thanet Look like it might be identical
5:16 Thanet I see , I try to will send you coordinate on these major location where we think the water come in thou these fractures
5:17 Vern I will get this situation resolved by the end of May as it's one of my main goals
5:18 Vern Interesting about the rock fractures
5:18 Thanet Cool. Let me know if I can be any help
5:19 Thanet Yes, the map were provided by the department if mineral and safetv of Thailand

5:19 Vern Not an easy caving trip and so much more to find in Monks Series. It's an interesting part of Tham Luang. May even have an upper series
5:19 Thanet Wow
5:20 Thanet That will be new discovery
5:20 Vern Let me have the info when convenient
5:20 Vern [Sticker]
5:20 Thanet Sure, will do
5:20 Vern Lot's of new passages to find
5:20 Thanet Being a caver must be very excited
5:21 Thanet Discover thing, go to the unknown
6:07 Vern [Sticker]
9:36 Vern [Photo]
9:49 Vern Where Monks Series Ends the passage then heads west for circa 400metres not yet surveyed. Most of the 400metres is crawling some flat out. It ends in a very low section which requires digging but you can see the passage continuing with still a strong draught
9:50 Vern Effectively it runs up the valley between the 2 large blocks of limestone

3:05 Thanet They said he went to chamber 3
3:06 Thanet And also there is drama behind thus as well
3:06 Thanet The person who took musk and his team inside the cave should ask permission from the central command first
3:07 Thanet But instead they going in without permission but using influence to Prime minister to go in
3:08 Thanet Next day they were also fighting over this as many people specially Narongsak is very upset
3:09 Thanet Because of the rescue operation is undertaking that why they so stick with regulation at that time
3:09 Vern [Sticker]
3:10 Thanet No problem

4:48 Vern [Sticker]
4:49 Vern If I tell true story I risk being told to leave Thailand
4:49 Thanet Not really,
4:49 Thanet Not they are ok with it

4:51 Thanet Yes!!! That why I think we should put our story together. And present as a package
4:51 Thanet It probably one of the most important piece that made this mission accomplish.
4:52 Thanet With out you on June 26 meeting, without me and josh on July 5-6. None of this would never happened. They kid will dies for sure
4:55 Vern The email I received from Hollywood CAA first line say: you that's me) very much top of the list. Were it not for your experience, knowledge of the cave and swift response, it no exaggeration to say those boys would most likely not be alive today.

4:57 Thanet 5555
4:57 Thanet They really shouldn't do that
4:57 Vern You and Josh also deserve
4:58 Thanet We are the one that fight hard, made decision happed. We set thing up for them to do the job
4:58 Vern Events happened because of certain people coming together sometimes by chance meeting 555
4:59 Thanet I think it because the divers, doctor are on spotlight
4:59 Thanet Many people, media know them.
5:00 Thanet But we are behind the scene don't get much chance to present ourself to the media while we were working
5:00 Vern I'm ready to stick the boot in 555
5:01 Vern I accept without the divers the kids wouldn't be alive
5:02 Thanet But from 3 of us, I think you probably well know to public and media more. Since you were there in beginning and made the important decision meeting on June 26 and get divers in
5:02 Thanet But story on behind on July 6 no one know

4:15 Thanet First, no film or book will complete without the guy who know the cave better than anyone and pull everyone together, get diver in, push official to do the right thing on June 26

2) the guy who did water work, partial in charge and divert water section in rescue, that made dive rescue possible and help turn decision around on July 6

3) the guy who work inside negotiating between Thai and government and help push official to dive rescue on July 6

1:00 Vern Message from the Warner Bros guy (exclamation)

1:02 Thanet [Sticker]

1:03 Vern He will get very little cooperation by the government and they are monitoring his activities closely and to make certain that he and his team will not violate any rights.

1:20 Vern He will not and can only write his script with readily available news /public information only .

1:22 Thanet I see

1:22 Thanet This is very tricky to deal with government agency indeed

1:08 Vern Very interesting article
Please read.

Just received. A good read:-

The United States "New York Times" shocked the country, causing a sensation in the White House!

Thomas Friedman, a famous columnist of the New York Times, wrote an article titled "'The Seven Years of China and the United States'." It was published in The New York Times and shocked the White House !

He wrote: "When I sat in the seat of a Chinese stadium and enjoyed the magical performances of thousands of Chinese dancers, drummers, singers, and acrobats on stilts, I could not but recall the past seven years. Different experiences in the United States and China:

China has been busy with various infrastructure projects, and we are busy dealing with al-Qaeda (terrorists); they have been building better stadiums, subways, airports, roads and parks, and we have been working on the construction of better metal detectors, Hummer military vehicles and drones...

Differences have begun to show. You can compare the dirty old LaGuardia Airport in New York and the beautifully shaped international airport in Shanghai. When you drive to Manhattan, you will find out how dilapidated the infrastructure is along the way. Experience Shanghai's maglev train at speeds of up to 220 miles per hour. It uses electromagnetic propulsion instead of ordinary steel wheels and tracks. You have already arrived in Shanghai. Then ask yourself: Who is living in a third world country?

I think: As a modern country, China has accepted the main concepts of modern national sovereignty and human rights. However, the various qualities of Chinese civilization make it unique. One of the characteristics of China's development model is that the scale effect of learning + innovation + huge population affects China and the world. Many foreign companies investing in China have a slogan. If they can achieve the first in China, they will be able to achieve the world's best.

With the rise of China, this trend is beginning to expand into more and more areas such as tourism, aviation, film and television, sports, education, new energy, modernization models, and high-speed rail.

Some of us are more envious of the lives of small countries and small people, in fact, the difficulties of small and small countries. Small countries can't afford storms, while big countries face waves and have much more room for manoeuvre.

Chile is a comparatively more-developed developing country. However, in a major earthquake in 2010, GDP fell a large chunk, and the entire economy could not breathe for two years. Even if China encounters such a large-scale natural disaster as the Wenchuan earthquake, the entire country's economy remains unaffected.

For most countries, industrial upgrading often means that the industry migrates to foreign countries, and China can carry out large-scale industrial gradient transfer within itself, which extends the life cycle of Chinese manufacturing.

Culture - The collision of Chinese and Western cultures over the past thirty years has not caused most Chinese people to lose their cultural confidence.

The Chinese people today embrace Confucius's heat, Lao Tzu's heat, reciting hot, calligraphy and painting fever, tea ceremony heat, old house heat, cultural relics, Chinese medicine fever, and heat of health, all reflect the revival of Chinese traditional culture.

The food culture, health culture, and leisure culture derived from Chinese culture are also incomparable to other cultures. Street restaurants in any part of China can make 30 to 40 dishes. In the vast majority of American restaurants, there are only hamburgers and potato chips. There are three or four dishes that are good. European restaurants have more dishes but rarely more than seven or eight varieties.

Some of us are always worried that Chinese people lack religious feelings. In fact, anyone who is a little familiar with the history of the world knows that religious conflicts in human history have led to countless wars. The conflict between various Christian denominations and between Christianity and Islam has had a history of thousands of years, resulting in human tragedies in which countless lives were brutally murdered. Therefore, our people do not have to believe in religion.

Economics--China's traditional economics, strictly speaking, is not "market economics" but "humanistic economics."

In the long history of China, if a government fails to develop its economy and improve people's livelihood, it cannot handle disasters and disasters. It will lose support from the people and lose its "destiny" and will eventually be overthrown by the people.

Today's political party in China is a continuation of the historically unified Confucian ruling group tradition, rather than a Western party that competes on behalf of different interest groups.

Many people in the West only agree with the legitimacy of the regime resulting from multi-party competition. This is a very shallow political concept.

I once met an American scholar who questioned the legitimacy of the Chinese regime. I asked him why he did not first question the legitimacy of his own country: You took the land of others and passed colonial, immigration, extermination of Indians, and formed the United States today. . I asked him to explain to me where the legitimacy and legitimacy of such a country lies. In the end, he can only tell me that this is history.

Can we doubt the source of the legitimacy of Western regimes by using the concept of "selecting and selecting talents" in China?

Xiao (Small) "Junior" Bush's rule brought an economic downturn to the United States in eight years and brought disaster to Iraq. Bringing financial tsunami is an example.

The most important feature of China's historical legitimacy is the "political tradition of selecting the able and capable people and governing the country with the support of the people".

In the political culture of China, the concept of "one game at a time", "hardship on one side, support from all sides", and other cultures cannot be produced. I once discussed the Chinese model with Indian scholars. They said that on the face of it, China is centralized, but every reform in China actually has strong local characteristics. They compete and complement each other. Therefore, the Chinese system is better than India's. The system is more dynamic.

They have studied the West and have established a powerful modern government system. At the same time, they have their own unique political and cultural resources. The combination of the two makes it easier for us to overcome the populism, short-sightedness, and legalism that plagued Western democracy today. And other issues.

At the political level, many people in the West also take it for granted that China will accept the political model of confrontation with the West as the Chinese middle class grows. However, they also discovered today that the Chinese middle class today seems to value China's political stability more than any other class. They understand that the "democratization" of the West has brought chaos and turmoil to many countries.

Understanding their hard-earned wealth accumulation has actually benefited from more than 30 years of political stability in China.

Frankly speaking, what China has demonstrated today is definitely not an oversimplified or even simple concept of "advanced" and "backwardness," "democracy," "autocracy," "high human rights," and "low human rights."

This is the article written by Thomas Friedman, an American columnist, "Seven Years of China and the United States."*

It is very worthwhile for every Chinese to take a serious look and have a patriotic family !
Please applaud our leaders !

23:37 Thanet He wrote a book call The Great Cave Rescue
23:44 Vern Yes I know him. Not a good review.
23:45 Vern Nerm Nom Sao never existed as a named section of the cave. It was someone from the media who came up with the name. Mix one of the boys was with us yesterday when we escorted the Navy Seals in to recover the rest of there equipment. He said they didn't come up with the name Nerm Nom Sao. Also they pooped on the beach. They literally swam across and swam back CRAZY. ♦

3:28 Vern Went into Monks Series on Thursday. Still sumped at 450metres. The silt blockage at 150metres only took 1hr to dig out rather than 3hrs last year. Totally surprised at it still being sumped. The far end is bone dry. No active inlets other than the Voute Basse inlet.

3:29 Vern It's not bad and I don't think it has anything to do with smoke(exclamation) I think it's something to do with the air temperature and water vapor?

Hi Vern

Thank you for the email.

From Ellis's email. Yes, I agreed with you that he desperately need you on board.

The whole rescue key factor is begin with you, and your recommendation to bring in UK dive team, without this incident, the rescue would be a failure.

It also sound clear to me is that, any books or film that wanted to include your part in it, they will need to seek your permission or your concent first. Otherwise, you have the right to sue them later on. And I think is good, it's mean you have bargaining power.

I agreed with you that everyone try to make deal that likely won't work without our part in it. book or film will be incomplete and bored.

and seem like everyone just wanted a free pass from you to help them out, while they making fortune out of our story.

Hi Thanet

Hope you are both well

My agent Will Robinson is now representing me.

Dr Harry and Dr Craig with coach Ekk have apparently sold rights to a book for $6m dollars+ which has been sold on to Universal, but they do have problems

One, the guy Ellis has seen Coach Ekk but the Wild Boars Committee won't allow him to be interviewed. He tried 3 days ago in Maesai.

Two, I am integral to the book as you can see from the contents of the email from Ellis

Ellis have constantly phoned me for a meeting but I don't answer or wish to meet with him

The book therefore will fall flat on it's feet and Dr H and Dr C now know this.

What I don't like about all this is that everyone is trying to do deals that won't work. I am the KEY, I am the BIG piece in the Jigsaw.

Ellis now knows that they need to make a BIG offer on the table !!!

I have spoken with Josh who also met with Will yesterday in Chiangmai.

Let me make it perfectly clear that my story, Josh's story and your story is HUGE one of the greatest stories ever !!!

It may not be film material but certainly Book and maybe documentary material.

Let me know your thoughts

Take Care

Best

Vern

Subject: Harry book

Vern—as Harry and Craig tell their story with Coach Ekk, they want to fully recognize the crucial roles played by others—you very much at the top of the list. Were it not for your experience, knowledge of the cave and swift response, it is no exaggeration to say those boys would most likely not be alive today.

I would like to ask about

- Your previous time in the cave and its special challenges.
- the details of how you were alerted to this crisis and your earliest thoughts (many others were quite pessimistic about the boys' chances)
- your impressions upon first arriving
- your feeling about how the rescue was organized
- how you worked with the other British divers, the Thai military personnel, the US military and others on the scene.
- your thoughts about the rescue plan as it came together.
- Your impressions of how the rescuers did and did not work well together.
- lessons learned for the future for cave diving, rescue, Thailand, the boys and your adopted home.
- any personal recollections about the many characters involved.

I am sure I will think of some other things as we speak. But the goal is to share YOUR insights and unique perspective—good, bad or otherwise. Without it, our book won't be as thorough and truthful as it could be.

I look forward to sitting down with you in a more relaxed environment.

The BuzzFeed News Standards And Ethics Guide

BuzzFeed Head of US News

Standards and Ethics Guide

BuzzFeed News has the opportunity to help shape a new set of standards for a new generation of media. We are offering these standards to our staffers and to our readers as a first attempt at articulating the goal of merging the best of traditional media's values with deep shifts in the forms of media and communication. Our intent with this document is to provide context and support for BuzzFeed News staffers in making smart, responsible, and ethical choices as we tell the most honest, troublemaking, revelatory, heartwarming, gripping, and entertaining stories we can.

These standards were shaped in conversations with our writers and editors and colleagues in the industry, and we expect them to evolve as they're tested. BuzzFeed News is still growing up too, and these are aimed at helping us on our way, and at reflecting the kind of media company we want to be. We are making this document public to keep BuzzFeed News' writers, reporters, and editors accountable to our readers.

The document is separated into four sections: 1) Sourcing, 2) Corrections, Updates, Deletions, and Errors, 3) Legal and Ethics, and 4) The Editorial and Business Relationship. The guidelines in this document apply to BuzzFeed's global news operation for entertainment content.

Finally, this guide is intended to provide principles rather than offer specific answers to every possible ethical question that arises. Writers and editors make tough editorial decisions every day, and the hardest and most important calls rarely have obvious answers.

Sourcing

Embeds

We often embed Instagram images and tweets in news and entertainment. But in the case of sensitive subjects — sexual assault, LGBT issues, and racial bias, for example — we should be aware and respectful of the fact that many ostensibly public Twitter users consider themselves part of distinct communities. Outside of breaking news situations, writers are encouraged to contact Instagram and Twitter users when embedding a photo or a tweet on a sensitive subject. Contacting the user has the added benefit of giving the story more context for the reader. In cases where identifying the user is inappropriate but the content is still newsworthy, screenshots with the name and image blurred are fine.

Fact-Checking

Fact-checking can be provided for deep narrative features and investigative projects. Reporters are expected to be accurate, and editors are expected to flag any questions they have for their writers before publishing. Additional accurate information can always be added after publishing — removing bad information is more difficult (see Corrections and Updates for more information).

Information and Facts

Information — excluding common knowledge — should come from a verified source. Wikipedia, IMDb, and other websites that anyone can edit should never be used as sources in a story; they are places to begin research, not to finish it. Acceptable verified sources include interviews, legal documents, research by experts, academic journals, databases, and, with attribution, stories from trusted news organizations.

Plagiarism

To plagiarize is to trick the reader. Nothing may be copied, pasted, and passed off as one's own work, including press releases.

Polls and Other Studies

When considering reporting on a study or poll, ask these questions: Have the authors included a detailed methodology? How many people did they study? (For most studies, be skeptical of anything below 100; for polls, anything below 1,000.) Do the authors have any conflicts of interest? For medical studies: Was the study performed on humans, or other animals? (Drugs, for example, that work in mice might fail in humans.) For polls: How, precisely, were the questions worded? Never take information directly from a press release. Instead, ask the authors for a copy of the actual study or poll. When you're asking readers to vote for fun, don't suggest that results reflect a scientific sample. The data journalism team is available to assist staffers who have questions about data.

Press Releases

Reporters may quote from press releases and should make the source clear — "said in a press release." With that said: Interviews are always better.

Quotes

- Anonymous quotes: Anonymous quotes are permitted, though writers should always try to get a source on the record before agreeing to let them be anonymous. Staffers should spell out why their source is anonymous and include an explanatory line in the story that the reader will understand. When possible, writers should share the source's identity with their editor, unless it's a very extreme case, in which case the editor-in-chief should be consulted prior to publication. We don't have an arbitrary number of anonymous sources required to verify a story: One well-placed anonymous source is worth more than four anonymous sources who are all repeating the same rumor.

Writers should also take precautions not to reveal the identity of confidential sources, including avoiding putting a source's name in writing on unsecured channels.

- Attribution: All quotes are to be attributed. Quotes that have been given directly to a BuzzFeed News staffer should be noted as such by using the words "told BuzzFeed News" (or in some cases, "BuzzFeed Health" or "BuzzFeed Reader") at least once in the story. Quotes from other outlets should be attributed to that outlet: "told the Guardian," etc., with a link to the article. Quotes that come from the wire services we subscribe to should also be attributed: "told the Associated Press" or "the Associated Press reported."
- Quote approval: As a general rule, BuzzFeed writers are not permitted to have quotes approved by sources or share story drafts with their subjects. As a courtesy, or to double-check their work, a writer may choose to call or email a source and describe how they are quoted in a story. "No surprises" letters are also a welcome way of letting sources and subjects know what will be in a story: Sending a note to the subject that includes allegations or a description of what will be published is a reporting tool that also acts as a safeguard for the reporter. There are rare exceptions to the quote-approval rule, particularly in countries where that practice is the norm — but writers should push back as a first response, and discuss with an editor before agreeing.
- Quote disputes: If a source disputes a quote as published, the writer and their editor may review the writer's notes and recordings to determine if the complaint is warranted. If warranted, the quote will be updated and a correction issued. If a source disputes the way their position was characterized, rather than a specific quote, an editor should determine whether the complaint is valid.

Corrections, Updates, Deletions, and Errors

Body Copy

Changes to body copy may require a notification to the reader via an update or correction. Stories that are ongoing with breaking news can be updated with information as it becomes available — by using either subheads with a manual timestamp or the breaking news template with an automatic timestamp to alert the reader to updates.

Corrections and Updates

There are a number of ways to add updates for clarity and context to written news articles: using the update option in the CMS, writing through the body copy with the additional information, or adding the latest news to the top of the post. Consult with your editor to choose the best option.

Fixing incorrect copy should be done using the correction subbuzz. For full information on how and when to write corrections or updates, see the BuzzFeed Style Guide. Corrections are flagged to the copydesk; if you have questions on wording or styling, email (or walk over and visit!) them for guidance.

Distributed platforms will not always offer these tools for corrections, but we should strive for clarity and transparency in the spirit of these rules, given the options the platform makes available.

Deletions

Case 2:18-cv-08048-SYW-JG Document 106-2 Filed 11/11/19 Page 51 of 78 Page ID #:3795

News items should not be deleted for reasons related to their content, or because a subject or stakeholder has asked you to do so. If a technical issue arises — like you update a post to an incorrect URL — email bugs@yourmanager.com. If a post was published ahead of schedule, remove it from all site promotion and ask bugs to unpublish it for you. If two people inadvertently created a post on the same subject, both posts should be left on the site.

If some information in a post is incorrect or obsolete, it is acceptable to delete that information and add a brief correction or update explaining what was removed.

Getting hoaxed should be avoided through diligence and reporting, but if an entire post is incorrect or if it has turned out to be a hoax, 1) append “— Updated” to the end of the headline and note in the deck that the story is false, and 2) add a correction subbuzz to the top of the post. The rest of the copy may stand as it did originally.

There are two cases in which deletions may be necessary: First, on some distributed platforms, editing content is not an option, in which case content may be deleted and in some cases edited and reposted, with an explanation on that platform in either case. Second, in some countries, the law requires the deletion of content in some cases. In those cases, we will comply with local law.

The deletion process for Community posts differs from editorial standards. For more information, review our Community Guidelines and Terms of Service.

Display Copy

Updating display copy — headlines, decks, and photo captions — for clarity, spelling, or style does not require a correction. Factual errors do require a correction.

For information on updating images, contact the photo desk.

Legal and Ethics

Activism

We firmly believe that for a number of issues, including civil rights, women's rights, anti-racism, and LGBT equality, there are not two sides. But when it comes to activism, BuzzFeed editorial must follow the lead of our editors and reporters who come out of a tradition of rigorous, neutral journalism that puts facts and news first. If we don't, it makes it harder for those reporters to do their jobs.

Allegations

Legal counsel should review stories with serious or potentially damaging allegations in them; if there is any doubt, do not hesitate to contact them. Writers are also encouraged to send a "no surprises" letter to subjects of investigative reports prior to publication, giving them time to comment. Any questions on how to word the letter should be run by your editor. For information on libel or conducting privileged conversations, contact general counsel.

Animal Visitors

We seek to follow the Humane Society of the United States' suggestion that you should "never put an animal in a situation that you wouldn't want to see your newborn baby in." Staffers should never purchase or rent wild animals, or bring exotic animals into the office. When we have animal guests visiting, they should be treated like any other guest — i.e., their needs for food, water, rest, and personal space should all

Awards

We are pleased when our colleagues' work is honored by their peers, and we apply for leading journalism awards. We do not apply for or accept awards from advocacy organizations we cover, and staffers should not apply for those awards — though if anyone chooses to call attention to or honor our work, we welcome it. If you wish to submit your work for an award independently, talk to your manager about it.

Compensating Sources

We do not pay sources for interviews. If an interview incurs costs to a source through travel or work compensation lost, we may be able to reimburse them, but check with your editor before agreeing to do so.

Conflict of Interest and Disclosure

If you're asking yourself, "Is this a conflict of interest?" it likely is. Readers are also a good barometer for this; take a moment to consider whether the reader would see a conflict of interest. Writers and editors should disclose if they have a financial or personal stake — Is the subject a friend or significant other? Have you disclosed this? — in the issue they are covering. Reporters should not have a financial stake in a company in the industry they cover. Check with your editor about whether disclosure is enough, or whether the story should be reassigned.

Customer Service Complaints

Reporters and editors should not use their work-related email accounts, social media accounts, or other BuzzFeed-related platforms to seek customer service assistance. It's fine, however, to tweet in general about issues with, say, the subways or other private or public services, as long as you aren't seeking — or receiving — special treatment. For example:

Okay: "The face unlock on my new iPhone X never works."

"The seats on @FlyFrontier Airlines are too close together for normal human legs."

Not okay: "@apple, I can't get face unlock working on my iPhone X. Little help?"

"@frontiercares I paid for extra legroom but my knees are completely jammed up against the seat in front of me."

Disclosing Provided Materials

We should note when items such as clothing or appliances have been furnished to us for review. When an item or items was/were provided and used in the test kitchen or as part of a photo shoot, but not reviewed, writers should disclose that at the bottom of the post.

Gifts

Gifts that aren't review material (books, music, DVDs) or edible typically should be returned or donated. A rough guide — though imperfect — for determining if you can keep a gift is whether the item costs $25 or less. If it costs more than $25, talk to your editor.

Graphic Content

While it ultimately comes down to the calls of the newsroom managers on duty, we concluded that BuzzFeed.com is not an artificial wall between our readers and graphic content. Generally speaking, we will embed or link to the graphic content we are writing about. On our owned-and-operated platforms, we also have technical tools that give our readers the opportunity to opt in to view graphic content. Marking a post NSFW in the CMS prevents it from going into our 13+ BuzzFeed app.

- Profanity: We speak the language of the internet — which is often hilarious and often profane. As such, profanity is permitted on BuzzFeed; but see the BuzzFeed Style Guide for more information on how to style it responsibly.
- Sex and nudity: Nudity or sex should be avoided if it's prurient or pornographic. Newsworthy or artistic nudity or instructional sexual content can be posted as long as the post has been clearly marked NSFW in the deck and in the CMS.
- Violence: Images that show blood, gore, or violent abuse should be covered with the graphic overlay tool, allowing readers to click if they wish to see the images. These posts should be marked "sensitive" in the CMS. When covering extreme violence or death, use discretion when embedding — sometimes it's best to link out.

If you have questions about whether you should post something because of its graphic nature, talk to your editor and/or the manager on duty.

Interviews

Giving a subject a general sense of the direction of the interview is fine, but we should decline to provide questions to subjects in advance of an in-person interview. Interviews conducted over email, Facebook Messenger, or Gchat are permitted — but in-person, video, and telephone interviews are often more valuable.

Opinion

When BuzzFeed News publishes opinion pieces, they should be clearly labeled as opinion, both on the article page and in any social promotion. Our publication of these pieces does not mean an endorsement of the views contained within them. However, we seek to publish only opinion pieces that we believe were written in good faith, by people who we believe have a credible history of good-faith participation in the public sphere, and add a unique voice to the public debate around a topic of news value.

Our opinion section welcomes commentary from people with diverse political views, but it is not a place for trolls, dishonesty, or spin.

Outside Income

BuzzFeed News staffers who make money for work done outside of the company should disclose that information when they are hired. We discourage most freelance writing because we love your work and would like to publish the best things you write on BuzzFeed, but there are occasional exceptions. If you're doing something BuzzFeed would publish — pretty much anything but a novel or a screenplay — we'd like to run it. Please consult your manager if you think we should make an exception, and we'll consider it on a case-by-case basis.

We try to accommodate all book deals and will in most cases offer up to six months of unpaid book leave. If you're thinking of writing a book, please consult your manager first. Contract work and paid speaking engagements will be considered on a case-by-case basis and should also be cleared with your manager and PR. Staffers who do outside work related to the field they cover should adhere to the ethical guidelines set forth in this document for their personal work as well. No staffer is making outside income from a specific company, that staffer is not permitted to write about that company.

Staffers are also not permitted to invest in companies they cover. BuzzFeed News staff may not buy, sell, or in any way trade in stocks based on stories BuzzFeed News will publish. Staffers may not short any stocks.

Photography

Our original photography and image selection should not attempt to deceive the reader in any way. Subjects should be shown in the reality of the moment they are captured in. Materially manipulating images — such as reversing, distorting, or adding/removing people — is not allowed except in the cases of creating a photo illustration, which the caption will note. Minor adjustments to cropping, color, sharpening, etc., that do not materially change the photograph are permissible.

Political Speech

Reporters and editors should refrain from expressing partisan opinions about candidates, policy, and other public issues that BuzzFeed News covers. News staffers are not permitted to donate money or volunteer time for political candidates or campaigns, or to participate in demonstrations.

We do, however, expect reporters to engage in conversations on social media, legacy media, events, and street corners on subjects in which they have expertise or interest. In all those contexts, reporters should avoid saying things they wouldn't say in a news article or broadcast — that is, statements they can't back with reporting. And reporters should generally consider the value of commentary that may make their colleagues' work harder on specific beats. (Culture writers, whose work may be more overtly political or opinionated, should hold their comments to the same standards they do in their work.)

Digital media — the ubiquity of recording, the vast quantity of speech on social media, the power of search — has changed how regular people think about the principles of free speech. We believe deeply in those principles and in our right to report public information. But we also believe journalists must adjust to changing norms, and focus on defending and defining the right to reveal the secrets that matter.

We expect our reporters to consider context in three categories of privacy decisions, and to be particularly sensitive when it comes to minors:

- Search engine indexing: In some cases, we may identify a person by a version of their name other than the one that is widely used in searches, or anonymize them entirely, if it can be done in a way that does not substantially distort the reporting and may protect that person from having, for instance, the worst day of their life perpetually define their online identity.
- Social media: We should be attentive to the intended audience for a social media post, and whether vastly increasing that audience reveals an important story — or just shames or embarrasses a random person. We should not automatically or even typically comply with a poster's original intention — but we should be aware of it.

Products

BuzzFeed News writers can accept and may request samples of consumer products for evaluation or for photo shoots (as props or construction material). These materials should stay at the office or at BuzzFeed's photo studios.

BuzzFeed News staffers should request media that they are potentially interested in writing about (books, screeners, albums, etc.). Physical materials are often provided for review purposes, like concert tickets, DVD screeners, etc.

Pseudonyms

Freelancers and regular contributors should write under their own names or their professional pen names. We may make occasional exceptions for freelancers writing on important but sensitive topics, or for correspondents working on countries where journalism is dangerous or illegal. If you don't feel comfortable publishing under your own name, there are likely problems with the story that need to be addressed.

Selfies

Selfies are fantastic and you should take them as often as possible with friends and loved ones. But BuzzFeed News reporters should use good judgment when taking images with their subjects. Ultimately, all staffers should answer this question when it comes to photographs: "Would taking a photo with this subject undermine the work I'm doing?"

Source Meetings Over Meals or Drinks

BuzzFeed staffers should seek to pay costs incurred over the course of an interview or source meeting over a meal or drink.

Travel, Junkets, and Set Visits

We are happy that we are able to send staffers to report and cover events. If there is a journalistic reason for a BuzzFeed News reporter to accept travel and/or lodging provided for or arranged by a source, BuzzFeed News will reimburse the source with an amount equivalent to what we would have paid for commercial travel. Where this isn't feasible, we will disclose where we've accepted travel or lodging.

The Editorial and Business Relationship

BuzzFeed News relies deeply on the trust of our readers that we are bringing them accurate reporting, great storytelling, and useful service — and so we maintain a strict and traditional separation between advertising and editorial content.

Ad Campaigns

We don't write about ads that are running on BuzzFeed unless they are genuinely newsworthy.

BuzzFeed Entertainment Group

As BuzzFeed expands, we're going to be in more situations where BuzzFeed News is covering projects of people who have an affiliation with BuzzFeed Entertainment Group or other aspects of the company. When we're writing about someone who is affiliated with BFEG in any capacity, we should disclose that relationship.

This should be done in italics at the bottom of a post in the following way:

Case 2:18-cv-08048-SVW-JC Document 106-2 Filed 11/11/19 Page 56 of 78 Page ID

Disclosure: [Name] is an adviser [or another title] to the BuzzFeed News Content Group, which is part of the same company as BuzzFeed News.

BuzzFeed Investors

Our investors have no influence on our reporting, and reporters should not take any special note of investors' views or interests. When we cover people who are investors in BuzzFeed, typically it is because of their other business interests. Editors, not reporters, are responsible for noting whether a subject is an investor. In those cases, we should disclose that relationship with a parenthetical sentence in the running text after mentioning their name: "[Name/company] is an investor in BuzzFeed."

Cross-BuzzFeed Collaboration

BuzzFeed News maintains a divide between advertising and editorial staff. However, management-level editorial employees may be asked to vet certain sponsorships or projects. Some forms of advertising — including video integrations and advertisements in podcasts — may also involve staffers' participation in a clearly disclosed form.

Distribution Partners

BuzzFeed has business relationships with platforms ranging from social networks to television channels, under which BuzzFeed is paid for content, shares in advertising revenue against that content, or has some other arrangement. BuzzFeed News staffers should disclose these distribution relationships when we are writing about the specific product or program involved in the relationship. For instance, we should disclose that BuzzFeed has a Snapchat Discover channel when we are writing about Snapchat Discover as a product, or about Snapchat's strategy around media partnerships. It is not necessary to disclose this relationship at every mention of the partner. Editors, not reporters, are responsible for noting whether a subject is a partner.

The BuzzFeed News Standards And Ethics Guide

We published this guide to keep BuzzFeed News writers, reporters, and editors accountable to our readers.

BuzzFeed News

BuzzFeed News has the opportunity to help shape a new set of standards for a new generation of media. We are offering these standards to our staffers and to our readers as a first attempt at articulating the goal of merging the best of traditional media's values with deep shifts in the forms of media and communication. Our intent with this document is to provide context and support for BuzzFeed News staffers in making smart, responsible, and ethical choices as we tell the most honest, troublemaking, revelatory, heartwarming, gripping, and entertaining stories we can.

BuzzFeed News The BuzzFeed News Standards And Ethics Guide

Case 2:18-cv-08048-SVW-JC Document 106-2 Filed 11/11/19 Page 60 of 78 Page ID #:3804

These standards were shaped in conversations with our writers and editors and colleagues in the industry, and we expect them to evolve as they're tested. BuzzFeed News is still growing up too, and these are aimed at helping us on our way, and at reflecting the kind of media company we want to be. We are making this document public to keep BuzzFeed News' writers, reporters, and editors accountable to our readers.

The document is separated into four sections: 1) Sourcing, 2) Corrections, Updates, Deletions, and Errors, 3) Legal and Ethics, and 4) The Editorial and Business Relationship. The guidelines in this document apply to BuzzFeed's global news operation for entertainment content.

Finally, this guide is intended to provide principles rather than offer specific answers to every possible ethical question that arises. Writers and editors make tough editorial decisions every day, and the hardest and most important calls rarely have obvious answers.

Sourcing

Embeds

We often embed Instagram images and tweets in news and entertainment. But in the case of sensitive subjects — sexual assault, LGBT issues, and racial bias, for example — we should be aware and respectful of the fact that many ostensibly public Twitter users consider themselves part of distinct communities. Outside of breaking news situations, writers are encouraged to contact Instagram and Twitter users when embedding a photo or a tweet on a sensitive subject. Contacting the user has the added benefit of giving the story more context for the reader. In cases where identifying the user is

Fact-Checking

Fact-checking can be provided for deep narrative features and investigative projects. Reporters are expected to be accurate, and editors are expected to flag any questions they have for their writers before publishing. Additional accurate information can always be added after publishing — removing bad information is more difficult (see Corrections and Updates for more information).

Information and Facts

Information — excluding common knowledge — should come from a verified source. Wikipedia, IMDb, and other websites that anyone can edit should never be used as sources in a story; they are places to begin research, not to finish it. Acceptable verified sources include interviews, legal documents, research by experts, academic journals, databases, and, with attribution, stories from trusted news organizations.

Plagiarism

To plagiarize is to trick the reader. Nothing may be copied, pasted, and passed off as one's own work, including press releases.

Polls and Other Studies

When considering reporting on a study or poll, ask these questions: Have the authors included a detailed methodology? How many people did they study? (For most studies, be skeptical of anything below 100; for polls, anything below 1,000.) Do the authors have any conflicts of interest? For medical studies: Was the study performed on humans, or other animals? (Drugs, for example, that work in mice might fail in humans.) For polls: How, precisely, were the questions worded? Never take information directly from a press release. Instead, ask the authors for a copy of the actual study or poll. When you're asking readers to vote for fun, don't suggest that results reflect a scientific sample. The data journalism team is available to assist staffers who have questions about data.

Press Releases

Reporters may quote from press releases and should make the source clear — “said in a press release.” With that said: Interviews are always better.

Quotes

- Anonymous quotes: Interviews are always on the record until a reporter agrees to go off the record or on background. Anonymous quotes are permitted, though writers should always try to get a source on the record before agreeing to let them be anonymous. Staffers should spell out why their source is anonymous and include an explanatory line in the story that the reader will understand. When possible, writers should share the source's identity with their editor, unless it's a very extreme case, in which case the editor-in-chief should be consulted prior to publication. We don't have an arbitrary number of anonymous sources required to verify a story: One well-placed anonymous source is worth more than four anonymous sources who are all repeating the same rumor.

There are rare exceptions to the quote-approval rule, particularly in countries where that practice is the norm — but writers should push back as a first response, and discuss with an editor before agreeing.

If warranted, the quote will be updated and a correction issued. If a source disputes the way their position was characterized, rather than a specific quote, an editor should determine whether the complaint is valid.

When we have animal guests visiting, they should be treated like any other guest — i.e., their needs for food, water, rest, and personal space should all be met. Handlers should accompany animals who come into BuzzFeed spaces, and staffers should always follow the guidelines that handlers lay out.

Reporters shouldn't give money to groups they cover. And while there is of course no reason not to give charitable contributions, staffers should obviously be aware that those may not remain private.

Gifts

Gifts that aren't review material (books, music, DVDs) or edible typically should be returned or donated. A rough guide — though imperfect — for determining if you can keep a gift is whether the item costs $25 or less. If it costs more than $25, talk to your editor.

wall between our readers and graphic content. Generally speaking, we will embed or link to the graphic content we are writing about. On our owned-and-operated platforms, we also have technical tools that give our readers the opportunity to opt in to view graphic content. Marking a post NSFW in the CMS prevents it from going into our 13+ BuzzFeed app.

- Profanity: We speak the language of the internet — which is often hilarious and often profane. As such, profanity is permitted on BuzzFeed; but see the BuzzFeed Style Guide for more information on how to style it responsibly.
- Sex and nudity: Nudity or sex should be avoided if it's prurient or pornographic. Newsworthy or artistic nudity or instructional sexual content can be posted as long as the post has been clearly marked NSFW in the deck and in the CMS.
- Violence: Images that show blood, gore, or violent abuse should be covered with the graphic overlay tool, allowing readers to click if they wish to see the images. These posts should be marked "sensitive" in the CMS. When covering extreme violence or death, use discretion when embedding — sometimes it's best to link out.

If you have questions about whether you should post something because of its graphic nature, talk to your editor and/or the manager on duty.

Interviews

Giving a subject a general sense of the direction of the interview is fine, but we should decline to provide questions to subjects in advance of an in-person interview. Interviews conducted over email, Facebook Messenger, or Gchat are permitted — but in-person, video, and telephone interviews are often more valuable.

Do not be gratuitous with a shooter's name, photo, and video in posts, headlines, thumbnails and social shares, and on platforms; because it exists doesn't mean we automatically run it. Don't censor the facts/news when naming a shooter, or using a photo, or discussing the motive when it is necessary in the moment and during follow-up reporting. Use judgment each time.

When BuzzFeed News publishes opinion pieces, they should be clearly labeled as opinion, both on the article page and in any social promotion. Our publication of these pieces does not mean an endorsement of the views contained within them. However, we seek to publish only opinion pieces that we believe were written in good faith, by people who we believe have a credible history of good-faith participation in the public sphere, and add a unique voice to the public debate around a topic of news value.

Our opinion section welcomes commentary from people with diverse political views, but it is not a place for trolls, dishonesty, or spin.

Outside Income

BuzzFeed News staffers who make money for work done outside of the company should disclose that information when they are hired. We discourage most freelance writing because we love your work and would like to publish the best things you write on BuzzFeed, but there are occasional exceptions. If you're doing something BuzzFeed would publish — pretty much anything but a novel or a screenplay — we'd like to run it. Please consult your manager if you think we should make an exception, and we'll consider it on a case-by-case basis.

We try to accommodate all book deals and will in most cases offer up to six months of unpaid book leave. If you're thinking of writing a book, please consult your manager first. Contract work and paid speaking engagements will be considered on a case-by-case basis and should also be cleared with your manager and PR. Staffers who do outside work related to the field they cover should adhere to the ethical guidelines set forth in this document for their personal work as well. If a staffer is making outside income from a specific company, that staffer is not permitted to write about that company.

BuzzFeed News staffers should not cover any individual, organization, or service in which they have a financial interest. Staffers are not permitted to invest in companies they cover. Staff may not buy, sell, or in any way trade in stocks, funds, or currencies based on stories BuzzFeed News will publish. Staffers may not short any financial instruments.

Photography

Our original photography and image selection should not attempt to deceive the reader in any way. Subjects should be shown in the reality of the moment they are captured in. Materially manipulating images — such as reversing, distorting, or adding/removing people — is not allowed except in the cases of creating a photo illustration, which the caption will note. Minor adjustments to cropping, color, sharpening, etc., that do not materially change the photograph are permissible.

Political Speech

Reporters and editors should refrain from expressing partisan opinions about candidates, policy, and other public issues that BuzzFeed News covers. News staffers are not permitted to donate money or volunteer time for political candidates or campaigns, or to participate in demonstrations.

Case 2:18-cv-08048-SVW-JC Document 106-2 Filed 11/11/19 Page 72 of 78 Page ID #:3816

We do, however, expect reporters to engage in conversations on social media, legacy media, events, and street corners on subjects in which they have expertise or interest. In all those contexts, reporters should avoid saying things they wouldn't say in a news article or broadcast — that is, statements they can't back with reporting. And reporters should generally consider the value of commentary that may make their colleagues' work harder on specific beats. (Culture writers, whose work may be more overtly political or opinionated, should hold their comments to the same standards they do in their work.)

Digital media — the ubiquity of recording, the vast quantity of speech on social media, the power of search — has changed how regular people think about the principles of free speech. We believe deeply in those principles and in our right to report public information. But we also believe journalists must adjust to changing norms, and focus on defending and defining the right to reveal the secrets that matter.

We expect our reporters to consider context in three categories of privacy decisions, and to be particularly sensitive when it comes to minors:

- Search engine indexing: In some cases, we may identify a person by a version of their name other than the one that is widely used in searches, or anonymize them entirely, if it can be done in a way that does not substantially distort the reporting and may protect that person from having, for instance, the worst day of their life perpetually define their online identity.
- Social media: We should be attentive to the intended audience for a social media post, and whether vastly increasing that audience reveals an important story — or just shames or embarrasses a random person.

We should not automatically or even typically comply with a poster's

• Hacked material: We should be particularly attentive with hacked material to treat the intention of the hacker as a major part of the story, and to maintain a high bar for news value and context of potentially embarrassing personal information that is being weaponized.

Products

BuzzFeed News writers can accept and may request samples of consumer products for evaluation or for photo shoots (as props or construction material). These materials should stay at the office or at BuzzFeed's photo studios.

BuzzFeed News staffers should request media that they are potentially interested in writing about (books, screeners, albums, etc.). Physical materials are often provided for review purposes, like concert tickets, DVD screeners, etc.

Pseudonyms

Freelancers and regular contributors should write under their own names or their professional pen names. We may make occasional exceptions for freelancers writing on important but sensitive topics, or for correspondents working on countries where journalism is dangerous or illegal. If you don't feel comfortable publishing under your own name, there are likely problems with the story that need to be addressed.

Selfies

Selfies are fantastic and you should take them as often as possible with friends and loved ones. But BuzzFeed News reporters should use good judgment when taking images with their subjects. Ultimately, all staffers should answer this question when it comes to photographs:

Source Meetings Over Meals or Drinks

BuzzFeed staffers should seek to pay costs incurred over the course of an interview or source meeting over a meal or drink.

Travel, Junkets, and Set Visits

We are happy that we are able to send staffers to report and cover events. If there is a journalistic reason for a BuzzFeed News reporter to accept travel and/or lodging provided for or arranged by a source, BuzzFeed News will reimburse the source with an amount equivalent to what we would have paid for commercial travel. Where this isn’t feasible, we will disclose where we’ve accepted travel or lodging.

The Editorial and Business Relationship

BuzzFeed News relies deeply on the trust of our readers that we are bringing them accurate reporting, great storytelling, and useful service — and so we maintain a strict and traditional separation between advertising and editorial content.

Ad Campaigns

We don't write about ads that are running on BuzzFeed unless they are genuinely newsworthy.

As BuzzFeed expands, we're going to be in more situations where BuzzFeed News is covering projects of people who have an affiliation with BuzzFeed.com or other aspects of the company. When we're writing about someone who is affiliated with BFDC in any capacity, we should disclose that relationship.

This should be done in italics at the bottom of a post in the following way:

Disclosure: [Name] is an adviser [or another title] to BuzzFeed.com, which is part of the same company as BuzzFeed News.

BuzzFeed Investors

Our investors have no influence on our reporting, and reporters should not take any special note of investors' views or interests. When we cover people who are investors in BuzzFeed, typically it is because of their other business interests. Editors, not reporters, are responsible for noting whether a subject is an investor. In those cases, we should disclose that relationship with a parenthetical sentence in the running text after mentioning their name: "([Name/company] is an investor in BuzzFeed.)"

Cross-BuzzFeed Collaboration

BuzzFeed News maintains a divide between advertising and editorial staff. However, management-level editorial employees may be asked to vet certain sponsorships or projects. Some forms of advertising — including video integrations and advertisements in podcasts — may also involve staffers' participation in a clearly disclosed form.

Distribution Partners

BuzzFeed has business relationships with platforms ranging from social networks to television channels, under which BuzzFeed is paid for content, shares in advertising revenue against that content, or has some other arrangement. BuzzFeed News staffers should disclose these distribution relationships when we are writing about the specific product or program involved in the relationship. For instance, we should disclose that BuzzFeed has a Snapchat Discover channel when we are writing about Snapchat Discover as a product, or about Snapchat's strategy around media partnerships. It is not necessary to disclose this relationship at every mention of the partner. Editors, not reporters, are responsible for noting whether a subject is a partner.

[EXTERNAL EMAIL]

Alex,

As I forecast during Mr. Unsworth's deposition, Plaintiff will be seeking worldwide damages in this action without exception. Accordingly, Plaintiff is eliminating the carve out for damages suffered in England and Wales referenced in paragraph 108 of the Complaint. Will you will accept this written stipulation (to be included in the pre-trial order)? Doing so will save me from having to file an amended complaint. Let me know.

Thanks.

Lin
